What is a reversionary death benefit?

When a reversionary nomination was made by the Deceased on their Living Super Pension or TTR account, and we are able to confirm that the nominated beneficiary is a valid "dependant" as outlined by the SIS Act (further details are at the end of this form), ownership of the Deceased's Pension or TTR account will revert to the nominated reversionary once they have provided confirmation of their details and documentation as outlined in this form. If insurance applies on the Deceased's Living Super Pension or TTR account, the Insurer and Trustee of Living Super will consider the payment of any insured lump sum along with any existing pension that was paid to the Deceased. Any insured amount will be put toward the reversionary pension.

Section 4: Confirmation of Dependency

The Trustee can only pay a death benefit as permitted by the Superannuation Industry (Supervision) Act 1993, and the Fund's Trust Deed. These generally restrict the range of potential beneficiaries to people who were a 'dependant' of the deceased member.

In order to process the late members benefit, please confirm that you meet the definition of dependant as defined in the section 'Who are dependants' on page 4 of this form;

Yes, I am a Dependant

No, I am not a Dependant

Section 5: Bank account details – where the reversionary pension is to be paid

Account name

BSB

Note: Existing pension payments will continue to the nominated bank account until we are advised otherwise.

Account number

Section 6: Identification details of proposed beneficiary of pension

If you are already a Living Super pensioner, generally you do not need to provide formal identification evidence, provided your previously provided identification information is still current. Please confirm:

Yes, I am a Living Super pensioner or TTR account holder

No, I am not a Living Super pensioner or TTR account holder

If you answered 'No' to the above question, then please provide:

i) Original Certified copy of your identification
(this may be a copy of your Passport, Driver's License, or Birth Certificate),

and

ii) Your Tax File Number
(on the enclosed 'Tax File Number declaration form')

Section 7: Statutory Declaration – Statutory Declaration Act 1959 (Cth)

Further information

Claims for death benefits are made at a time when people are upset and usually anxious about their circumstances. The process of claiming a Death benefit can appear complex, particularly if you are unsure about superannuation entitlements. The following pages explain:

- Who is entitled to claim a Death benefit;
- The steps you must go through when making a claim;
- What the trustee of the superannuation fund needs to consider in reviewing a claim; and
- Some of the legal and superannuation terms you may come across.

Who are dependants?

Under the SIS Act, the term 'dependant' generally means one or more of the following people:

- the spouse of the member (including a de facto spouse);
- any child of the member – including any step child, any child recognised by the member as an adopted child and any child of the member born after the member's death;
- any person who the Trustee considers to have been wholly or partially financially dependent on the member at the time of the member's death;
- any person who the Trustee considers to have been in an 'interdependent relationship' with the member at the time of the member's death.

Financial dependency

Being financially dependent on the deceased does not necessarily mean that you depend on them totally for financial support. You may claim as a dependant, even if you were only partially financially dependent on the deceased.

Financial dependency may include a dependency on the deceased for payments of bills, rent, maintenance payments and shared financial commitments such as a mortgage.

Interdependent relationship

Two people will have an interdependent relationship if:

- they have a 'close personal relationship'; and
- they live together; and
- one or each of them provides the other with financial support; and
- one or each of them provides the other with domestic support and personal care.

OR

- they have a 'close personal relationship'; and
- they do not live together, nor provide each other with financial support, nor provide each other with domestic support and personal care because one or both of them suffer from a disability.

OR

- they have a 'close personal relationship'; and
- they live together; and
- one or each of them provides the other with financial support; and
- one or each of them provides the other with support and care of a type and quality normally provided in a close personal relationship, rather than by a mere friend or flatmate.

OR

- they have a 'close personal relationship'; and
- they do not live together, nor provide each other with domestic support and personal care because they are temporarily living apart.

A 'close personal relationship' is one that involves a demonstrated and ongoing commitment to the emotional support and well-being of two parties.

Two persons do not have an interdependent relationship if one of them provides domestic support and personal care to the other:

- under an employment contract or a contract for services; or
- on behalf of another person or organisation such as a government agency, a body corporate or a benevolent or charitable organisation.
